

Help the Iranian and Kurdish Refugees in Turkey

According to the latest news received from Turkey today, the Turkish police force in a surprise attack have arrested a large number of Iranian and Kurdish refugees in the city of Vaan in Turkey. The refugees have been transferred with buses to the Iranian border by the Turkish police. A number of the refugees have shown resistance which resulted in a violence between the Turkish police and the refugees. One of the refugees by the name of Hiva managed to flee the scene and returned to the city of Vaan to inform other refugees. The refugees are in fear and terror and they have all left their places of residence. There is a rumour among the refugees that the Turkish police are planning on handing over the remaining refugees to the Iranian authorities.

We condemn these anti-refugee actions of the government of Turkey and we also condemn the United Nations for being careless and negligent towards the well being of the refugees. We would like to ask all individuals, organizations and political parties who believe in freedom and humanity to defend the rights of the refugees in Turkey. We would like to ask all humanitarian organizations to put pressure on the government of Turkey and the United Nations to prevent any further deportations of Iranian and Kurdish refugees.
